Clearly, the people living in Attawapiskat are existing in a crisis that represents Canada's dysfunctional relationship with the first peoples.

How can we truly "fix" Attawapiskat? By fixing the underlying broken relationship.

Occupying #Attawapiskat in Twitter two weeks ago was a great start to engaging in serious improvements.

Phase two begins now with a call for a national dialogue to address the past and create a healthy future. This means looking at cultural genocide, racism, the Indian Act as obsolete in the 21st century, residential schools, language and potlatch prohibitions, treaty neglect and so much more.

Read more about this month's Twitter action down below, but first join the call by emailing these MPs.
