

The BCTF Says to Take 5 People When You Vote

by Stephen Elliott-Buckley - Tuesday, April 14, 2009

<http://politicsrespun.org/2009/04/the-bctf-says-to-take-5-people-when-you-vote/>

YouTube - BCTFvids's Channel.

The BCTF's YouTube videos [above] are pretty powerful. One of the best ideas in them is for each of us to make sure we take 5 people to vote for public education.

Do a quick mental survey of people you know, those that are politically curious, those that tend to avoid political topics.

Send them this link to pro-education videos and ask them if they're registered to vote. Then be their democracy guardian angel.

Too many people will end up not voting, but the world is run by people who show up, especially in a democracy that is struggling with legitimacy in our electoral system. Let's make sure that the people we know who care about solid policy that respects what a healthy future requires, actually cast a ballot.

And many grade 12 students are eligible to vote. Do you know any of them? Ask if they're mad as hell yet. If they're not going to take it anymore, make sure you help them along to being registered and vote.