

Unlike Premiers, Drunk Drivers Might Not Be Able to Enter Canada

by Stephen Elliott-Buckley - Sunday, February 28, 2010

<http://politicsrespun.org/2010/02/unlike-premiers-drunk-drivers-might-not-be-able-to-enter-canada/>

In doing some research into the emerging Olympic hangover, I found this piece about tourism in Vancouver. A good warning was about tourists with criminal records not necessarily being able to enter the country.

If that only applied to BC premiers, Gordon Campbell would have been stuck in Hawaii for the last 7 years and 7 weeks.

Be aware that if you don't have a clean record, you may not be able to enter Canada. Certain criminal offenses, such as driving while intoxicated, are considered inadmissible in Canada, and customs agents can look at your records instantaneously and send you home.

via Vancouver beckons with Post-Olympics deals | News for Dallas, Texas | Dallas Morning News | Travel: Best Fares.