

A Scourge a Day Keeps Electoral Defeat Away

by Stephen Elliott-Buckley - Monday, May 09, 2005

<http://politicsrespun.org/2005/05/a-scourge-a-day-keeps-electoral-defeat-away/>

The CanWest Ministry of Information in BC has created another issue for the reigning neoLiberal Campbell junta.

In a province where St. Paul's and Women's hospitals tell maternity patients to bring their own pillows, linen, blankets and pads to the hospital to give birth, the premier along with the Province rag create their very own scourge: crystal meth. Certainly this is a serious problem, but it's far from the scope of a health care crisis affecting 4 million British Columbians. Too bad there's no SARS still hanging around for our beloved [until recently] invisible former drunk driving leader to battle.

Finis

Questions, comments, feedback, gripes, thunderous applause? Email me...use the address at the bottom of the page. Please email me at the email address below if you would like to have each new blog entry emailed to you. For free, even. Archives are below these most recent posts.