

When Misogynists Are So Bold, They Skip Anonymity

by Stephen Elliott-Buckley - Wednesday, August 31, 2016

<https://politicsrespun.org/2016/08/when-misogynists-are-so-bold-they-skip-anonymity/>

The state of backlash against feminism has become newly bold. Likely because feminists are gaining traction in society, so men are doubling down on their fight to keep their sick entitlements.

The fact that most of the guys hurling the abuse used their real names, showing a passion and conviction in their argument that's not there with anonymous comments, is unsettling and shows the depth of their misogyny. I don't think they even realize it's there.

Click the Tara Bradbury quote above, read the article, and boldly declare your feminism! In any way you like. In person, at coffee shops, at work, in social media, on patios. Whatever. Be the change!